How It Works

Successfully removing feral hogs is a science that requires a specific method of trapping, a technique that we have perfected.

We don't just catch one or two hogs at a time educating the others; we capture the entire sounder (herd). Our goal as trappers is to eliminate the problem, eliminate the cost of damages, and improve the native wildlife, which currently competes for food with these nuisance animals.

After setting up the trap, our team of professionals continuously watches the camera for hog activity happening in real-time. As the hogs enter the trap, we are notified immediately via transmitted cellular signals. Once the entire group has been counted in the enclosure, a text message is sent, triggering the gate and effectively capturing the hogs.

Once the animals have been successfully trapped, our team will then perform humane live removal, where the hogs are loaded into a trailer and transported to a certified Texas holding facility. Because feral hogs can reproduce at a very rapid pace, it is crucial to remove then entire group eliminating further reproduction within that habitat.
